Smarter Learning for SDS conference

26 February 2015

Are you committed to making the vision of self-directed support (SDS) a reality?

Do you want to develop and share your learning experiences to help make this happen?

If the answer is yes, don't miss the Smarter Learning for SDS conference.

What is smarter learning?

Smarter learning is about how and where people learn; how they can connect with each other and share knowledge and learning; how we can make learning more personal.

Smarter learning is not just about technology, it's about starting effective learning conversations, like having the confidence to say 'help me out here...what is it that I need to learn or do better?'

SDS requires a significant culture change. We've all got a role to play in that and smarter learning can help us change old habits.

Book your free place now

The Smarter Learning conference runs from 10.30am – 4pm and you can book your place here at Eventbrite.

Spaces are limited, so a maximum of three representatives per organisation will be allocated in the first instance.

What we ask of you

Smarter Learning is more than just a one-off day of presentations. We need you to make this a success, which means a bit more work!

- Before the conference: share your SDS lightbulb moment. What inspired you or changed your thinking about SDS? Post your lightbulb using hashtag #SCBD15 or email alison.guthrie@sssc.uk.com
- During the conference: be an active participant. Question, reflect, and network.
- After the conference: share your learning with others. There will be an opportunity to be awarded an Open Badge for your work.

This conference is being organised and hosted by the Scottish Social Services Council and the SDS Workforce Project Board.
